

Society

THERE has probably never been so brilliant a meeting at Benning than that which commenced last Monday. Most of the smart set were present, and the gowns and hats that were worn, most of which came from the other side, will set the styles for the lesser lights of society for the coming season. Black and white seemed to be the prevailing mode in colors, and despite the Audubon society, the hats are decorated with waving plumes, stuffed birds, wings, breasts, and the like.

An interesting feature of the races was the winning by Don Kerr's hunter, Essex, of which was ridden by Mr. Robert Taylor, one of the most accomplished cross-country riders in the United States. Mr. Kerr could not ride his own horse, having only recently recovered from a lingering and tedious illness. The horse, however, is a favorite with society people, and the odds were small, which is true of the whole racing week, though there were several long shots that happily replenished the purses of the losers of the last racing season, when they came out at the small end of the horn.

Some of the prominent women in attendance were Mrs. George Howard; Mrs. E. R. Thomas, of New York, who wore a very English toilet of check plaid with a smart hat trimmed with cock's plumes; Miss Mathilda Townsend, Miss Katharine Elkins, the Misses Shonts, Miss Gertrude Claggett, Mrs. Jimmie Barbour, and Mrs. Jack Webb.

Last week was an ideal season for riding, and all those who are devoted to that sport were in evidence on the boulevards which lead into the country. Among them were a number of attaches from one of the embassies, who use the German tongue. These gentlemen ride rather slowly until they get into the suburbs, and speak more than ordinarily loud in their native tongue. Passing a house on the outskirts of town, where the young people of the family were educated in Germany, some of them indulged in a bit of delicious scandal which prompted one of their number to caution his companions lest somebody should hear. The damage, however, was already done.

Mrs. McLean will inaugurate her summer season at Friendship with a large luncheon to-day. She has invited the members of the Cabinet and nearly all of the young men and young women who are strictly in society. The number of her guests will test the capacity of even her commodious home. The luncheons at Friendship are the most agreeable feature of the summer season.

Mrs. James Wadsworth's ball at Rauscher's to-morrow night is, of course, the principal feature of the week's festivities. It is to be a large and handsome affair and will probably end with a cotillion. Senator and Mrs. McLean will entertain a number of Mrs. Wadsworth's guests at dinner before the ball.

Tuesday is filled with engagements. Mrs. Leger will entertain at luncheon at noon on that date. Miss Foulke will give a tea in honor of Miss Margaret Pierson, of New York, who is her house guest; in the afternoon Mrs. Franklin Bell gives a bridge party, and in the evening the Mexican Ambassador and Mrs. Creel entertain at dinner. The Secretary of Commerce and Labor and Mrs. Straus will give a dinner also in compliment to Mr. James Garfield.

On Wednesday Mrs. Elkins will give a large dinner for young people. Thursday the Russian Ambassador and Mrs. Rosen's dinner will take place, which will include a number of well-known society people and the members of his staff. Mrs. Bradley will give a bridge party on the afternoon of the same day.

On Friday the Sixty Couple Cotillion, with Mrs. Campbell as the always agreeable and amiable champion, will take place at Rauscher's.

Saturday is the date for the evening reception of the Mexican Ambassador and Mrs. Creel, who have sent out invitations to all of their new-found friends in Washington. All those who remember with pleasure the former gracious hospitality of the Mexican Embassy are looking forward to this occasion with pleasant anticipation.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Corinne Douglas Robinson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson, and niece of President Roosevelt, to George Draper, youngest son of the late Dr. William Henry Draper, the scientist, and grandson of the late Charles A. Dana. No date has been set for the ceremony.

The committee of the Farmington Society, in charge of the benefit performance on April 5, learned from Mrs. Garfield yesterday that the cast will be the same as that which has been playing "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Lyceum Theater in New York for almost a year. This announcement will insure a notable performance, which should attract every theatergoer, as well as those particularly interested in the relief work done by the memorial nurse among the sick poor. A large number of seats have already been sold and all the lower boxes. Mrs. N. Simpkins has the tickets for the upper boxes, and there are still some seats in the gallery.

Miss Edith Everett will spend Easter in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. George Winston, of Madison Hall Seminary, will give a reception next Saturday evening, when they will be assisted by the students of the school.

A wedding of much interest to many Washingtonians took place at Jolo, P. I., February 12, 1907, at the home of the collector of customs and Mrs. E. B. Cook. The contracting parties were Nellie Maude, daughter of Past Department Commander of the G. A. R. and Mrs. Israel W. Stone, and Mr. John Hayes de Baus.

Miss Stone left Washington, December 23, 1906, for Jolo, arriving there on the morning of February 12. Mr. de Baus having been unable to obtain leave of absence to return to this country for her. The ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock by Justice Mariano de Leon, a personal friend of the groom.

The drawing-rooms and dining-room were beautifully decorated with palms, ferns, rare orchids, and native flowers, and the American flag was draped gracefully into a canopy, under which the young couple knelt to hear the words pronouncing them man and wife. After the ceremony a reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. Cook in their honor. The bride's gown was white embroidered silk and over white tulle. She carried a bouquet of white orchids. Mr. de Baus' gift to his bride was a handsomely furnished home in Jolo, where they will live.
